

PROJECT MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

1. Create a Postgre database with the following tables. Define field types based on your understanding.

Domain

- a. Id (PK)
- b. Name

Project

- a. Id (PK)
 - b. ProjectName
 - c. Assignee
 - d. DomainID(It should be set as a foreign key to Domain table)
 - e. Description
 - f. DueDate
 - g. Domain
 - h. City
2. Create a .NET core MVC project using repository pattern
 3. Use Entity framework with PostgreSQL with Data first approach.
 4. Create a screen to show the list of records as shown in first screenshot
 5. Create Add/Edit form as shown in 2nd image
 - Add/Edit methods must be separate. Use partial view for Add and Edit forms.
 - If you are not going for nice to have features 1 & 2, use Dropdown control to populate existing Domain and use its Id to save the Project record.
 - On click of Delete, record should get deleted from the database and record should get disappeared from the list on UI.

Nice To Have:

1. Domain field must be auto-suggest control. If user selects existing Domain, then it should use its Id in the new/existing Project record while saving to database.
2. If user enters name that doesn't exist in the Domain table, then on click of Save button, it should create a new Domain record in the Domain table and its Id should be used in the new/existing Project record in Add/edit form
3. Paging / Pagination
4. Use Validations on front-end

Note: Finish the task within the specified timeframe of 5 hours, from 1:30 PM to 6:30 PM, and establish a new folder name Assignment within the same project repository in GitHub. Ensure that the assignment is committed before 7:00 PM; Any changes made after 7:00 PM will not be accepted and will result in the negative marking. Share the GitHub link with the coordinator once the assignment is completed within the designated time.
